

What is coded in the human spirit which transcends genetic limits,
Is a love of freedom and an ability to fight in the supreme terms of art and revolution;
The spaces that go into making the borders between countries protected by soldiers recruited from the poor,
Will one day be broken down by those very poor,
Because those borders are lands that separate humanity from itself,
They separate men and women from the consciousness of being themselves;
If the poor do not have a country it is because earth is home,
and in the country where the poor are least welcome
You can be certain that death has the last laugh.
